The 'Your Say on Disability' Survey Guide to Promotion

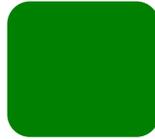

This year, the Scottish Government will be feeding into the UN Committee report with information on how the United Nations Convention on Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD) has been implemented in Scotland.

'Your Say on Disability' is a questionnaire which has been developed to inform the UNC report on what disabled people feel about what is happening in Scotland with regard to disability, Independent Living and general access related issues. The questionnaire is ongoing, and will be used to draw comparisons from year to year.

We can make the voice of disabled people louder by working together to promote Your Say on Disability across Scotland. By taking some simple steps, you can be part of gathering evidence about what disabled think about key areas such as health, transport, education and employment as well as inclusive communication, participation and Capacity Building.

Overleaf you will find a range of ways that you can help promote this campaign.

Website

Please add the link to your website, or even better to your online news section, if you have one. An article is available for you to use to promote the website and this can be used for your own news.

Newsletters and e-newsletters

As above, please include the website and article in your newsletters and other materials where possible. SDEF have a widely-read printed quarterly publication in which we will gladly include any disability related articles or events from your organisation.

Other Publications

We have provided a small number of stickers to add to your existing publications. However, additional sheets can be sent you upon request.

Social Media

It's simple to add the link into your usual Twitter/Facebook feeds, or by re-tweeting the post from other organisational feeds.

Signatures

Change your signature to include a link to the 'Your Say on Disability' website. That way, every time you send an email out, the link will go with it. Changing your signature in outlook is easy. Go to outlook/tools/options/signatures and add the weblink beneath your usual details.

Posters

We have included a poster in your pack. However, this and all other literature is available on the website for downloading and printing. Should you require some posters, please contact Scottish Disability Equality Forum who will arrange for some to be sent out to you.

Talk About It!

Let people know that it's there! Every person who completes the questionnaire is another valuable voice on disability in Scotland.
